

John Gabriel Borkman by Henrik Ibsen

In Ibsen's play, John Gabriel Borkman, written in 1892, a former 'pillar of society' has been in voluntary seclusion in an upstairs room, since enduring a five year prison sentence for embezzlement. His wife, her twin sister, his son and even Borkman himself, are entrapped in the suffocating atmosphere of this inward looking household.

The action takes place over one afternoon and evening in winter. In the ensuing turmoil of memories and impassioned accusations, only one person will truly escape.....

The present version by Nicholas Wright, of this remarkable play, was first performed by the National Theatre under the direction of Richard Eyre.
