OTHELLO

Proscenium

"Perdition catch my soul but I do love thee!
And when I love thee not, chaos is come again."

Thus Othello, defender of the faith and the power of Venice, exults in the love of Desdemona, his bride; in his world without end.

But it is prophecy he speaks, unknowingly. His whole integrity and reputation are to be defamed and dishonoured by the intrigues of the wretched, plausible Iago.

And chaos comes indeed — in Othello's tortured, jealous mind, in Desdemona's innocence traduced, in bloody revenge and heart-rending remorse.

Othello's is a giant's fall as the evil Iago, with a little pin of hatred, bores through his castle wall of love and trust. And our breath, re-telling the tale nearly four hundred years on, stirs the hot dust of Cyprus once again.
